Farmer's Corner.

Buttermilk Cheese.

Buttermilk cheese is a new product obtained by curdling buttermilk with heat, draining the curd and adding salt. Large amounts of buttermilk are wasted every year at creameries. If it were made into buttermilk cheese, it would furnish a large supply of palatable food, equal in value, pound for pound, to beefsteak. It can be sold profitably at half the price of butter.

To make buttermilk cheese the buttermilk is curdled by heating to 80 degrees, and left undisturbed for an hour. It is then heated to 130 degrees and after standing quiet for about an hour, the clear whey is drawn off the curd and the latter is placed on a draining rack, which is covered with cheesecloth. Here it remains half a day or over night, until as dry as desired, when it is salted with one and one half pounds of salt per hundred pounds of curd, and is ready for use. Buttermilk cheese can be made from buttermilk, from cream which was pasteurized before rising, or from cream which may be pasteurized during the process of cheesemaking, in either case insuring the absence of disease germs.

Packing and selling the cheese requires special attention since the public is not familiar with the product and it must be thoroughly advertised to secure the market. It may be shipped in butter tubs and retailed in paper pails or other small packages. It will for a week or ten days at 60 or 60 degrees, but can be kept longer if stored at 32 degrees or lower. It may be sold for three or five cents per pound, or at a factory and retailed at seven to 12 1/2 cents per pound, and prove a profitable product for both the creamery and the retailer. If color is desired, it may be secured by adding cheese color, the same as used by Cheddar cheesemaker.

Where only a few pounds of buttermilk cheese are made at a time, as on a farm or for home use, the buttermilk can be heated in a pail or a clean now wash boiler on the stove. After the second heating, i. e., to 130 degrees, if the curd has settled, the whey can be mostly poured off by tipping the pail, and the curd poured into a small cheesecloth bag to drain. If the curd is floating, it can be dipped off the surface of the whey with a dipper or large spoon and put in the bag to drain. A small wooden draining rack a foot square and five or six inches deep, with the bottom made of one-fourth of an inch mesh galvanized or tinned iron wire netting and covered with cheesecloth, is useful for draining small amounts of buttermilk cheese.

Buttermilk from rich cream, containing 50 per cent or more fat, as well as buttermilk from cream which was pasteurized when very sour, is not suitable for making buttermilk cheese. The curd from such buttermilk is always so fine grained that it runs through the draining cloth and is lost.

The food value of buttermilk cheese is very high, when its low cost is considered. It is very palatable when eaten alone like cottage cheese, seasoned with salt, pepper, paprika, or when used in salads. On account of the smooth texture of this cheese it can be spread like butter on bread and made into sandwiches. Because of its fine buttermilk flavor it is generally preferred to cottage cheese by consumers.—J. L. Sammis in Bluegrass Farmer.

SPEED OF OSTRICHES.

In selecting ostriches for menageries or zoological gardens the swiftest are chosen, not because it will be necessary for them to run in their new quarters, but because swiftness is a good indication of health and robustness.

A buying agent visited a pen of ostriches in Africa. At his call two beautiful birds came up to him. Being desirous of testing their speed, he arranged with the keeper that they should run a race. So he cautioned the birds and showed them a handful of figs, of which they are very fond.

The ostriches were held while the visitor walked a certain distance. At a signal they were set free and began to run for the figs. They came bounding along at a terrific rate, taking twelve or fourteen feet at a stride.

They ran neck and neck for more than half the distance their wings working like arms and making a great sound. Presently one drew ahead, and, looking behind, as you may have noticed a boy in a foot race do, to see where his rival was, and, finding him beaten, the winner slackened his pace and gently trotted up for the prize of figs.—Ex.

Our JOB WORK is the best.

Effects of Alcohol.

A recent investigation showed that ten in every hundred of the children of drinking couples in London were consumptive, while only two in one hundred of the children of abstaining couples were similarly affected. A study of mental deficiency among school children showed that out of 29,000 cases, nearly one-third came from drinking parents. More than half of these proved dull in their school work; whereas, among the children of abstaining parents only one in ten proved similarly deficient. A physician recently declared that his investigations had shown that of 600 children born of 120 drinking mothers, 335 died in infancy or were still-born, several were idiots, and four in every hundred were epileptics. In examining into the history of 2,552 idiots, epileptics, hysterical or weak-minded children in a French institution, it was found that over 41 out of every 100 had drinking parents.—Medical Magazine.

The Republican Party to Blame.

A woman has hit the nail on the head. Mrs. Harriett Santation Blatch, speaking in New York City said: "Can nothing halt the vulgar quarrel which goes on day by day between our two leading citizens? Have we forgotten that the one raging combatant is an ex-president and the other the chief executive of these United States? I am not so narrow-minded so uninformed as to hold that men are incapable of lasting friendship, that when ambition steps in between them they will always turn and rend each other, I do think the love the sex has for a fight has held hold of our men and led them to form a ring about the combatants instead of stepping in and ending a quarrel which has become a national disgrace.

And are there no wise men—nay, just men, just men with common sense in the republican party? Surely the squabble is but a family affair. Every tu quoque reveals only a skeleton in the republican cupboard. What profits it when the ex-says the chief executive was at a certain cabinet meeting and the latter says he wasn't when in any case the responsibility each is trying to shift to the other's shoulders is the responsibility of a republican cabinet?

"Our president says the ex-president wrote a letter and the latter says he didn't. What matters it so long as the policy each tries to blame on the other was a policy of a republican administration? If there be any with brains in these shouting hosts of backers, can they not draw apart and formulate a principal about which the same men of their party can rally?

"For the sake of the reputation of men in friendship, for the sake of realities in political life, for the sake of our nation's good name, let this nauseous war of personalities cease!"—C. M. Monner.

Deploable Accident.

On Sunday morning Miss Dula Allen, of Cannel City, had the misfortune to break a limb. She and Mrs. J. H. Sebastian were in the hack coming from Highland Park and became excited thinking that the team was running away and both of the ladies jumped from the hack. Mrs. Sebastian escaped uninjured, but Miss Allen's left limb was broken below the knee. She was immediately taken to Mr. Sebastian's and medical attention procured, and at last accounts was getting along nicely.

Allen and Edwards Caught.

Sidney Allen and Wesley Edwards, the last two Hillsville outlaws to be apprehended, were caught Sept. 24th at De Moines, Ia. Young Edward's sweetheart, Miss Maude Irole, of Mount Airy, Va., who had gone across the country to meet him, and to whom he was to have been married on the night of his arrest, was the innocent cause of the men being arrested.

Parents of Two Dozen.

Mr and Mrs. J. D. Blades, of Neave, are the father and mother of twenty-four children. The girl baby of their twenty-fourth daughter, Mrs. Isham Brown of Willow, who is their twenty-fourth granddaughter, took the $10 premium in the baby show at the Germantown fair last week. Mr Blades is 65 and Mrs. Blades 63 years of age. Both are hale and healthy and the proudest grandparents in the county.—Brookville View.

Aged Man Dead.

"Uncle" Bill Walsh, as he was familiarly known, died at his home on Long Branch Friday afternoon the 13th inst., of troubles incident to old age. He was about 77 years old and was a quiet, respectable citizen. He had been in failing health for time and his death was not unexpected. He is survived by five sons and five daughters, and numerous relatives and friends mourn his loss. The remains were interred in the family lot at the Salyer cemetery Saturday.

The Courier joins the many friends in their expression of sympathy for the bereaved family.

Dog Earns His License.

The little fox terrier of Mr. I. N. Hanley won for his master a license tag for the killing of 100 rats. The prize was offered when the canine had killed eighty in two weeks, by a member of the Council.

Minister To Aid Bashful Beaux.

"If any poor, bashful man in my audience has fallen in love with some worthy woman and wants to meet her for a wife, I will see that he is introduced, has a place to court, will help him get his license, pay for it if necessary, marry him free of charge and furnish him with a wedding certificate which he may hang near the motto, 'God Bless Our Home.'"

This is the offer made by Rev. G. L. Morrill, a prominent Minneapolis pastor, in his sermon on "The Masher Mashed."

Mr. Morrill termed a masher "a biped who roosts on the corner and by look, gesture and speech takes familiar advantages of woman who pass by."

"And if the fellow seemed to want a hot time, girls," the pastor advised, "wallop him with your bag and then throw red pepper in his eyes."

Regarding eugenics, Rev. Mr. Morrill said:

"Woman was made to marry and not be a religious recluse, old maid or stenographer, unless she possesses some defect of mind or body which would result in degenerate offspring."

"The ogling ogre is sometimes mashed by the indignant victim or by some many looker-on, who remembers his own dear ones, some gallant policeman or by the Judge, who, instead of giving a light fine, gives a heavy sentence to the workhouse, where Mr. Masher may flirt with the mop, make googoo eyes at daisies in the fields or mash rocks in quarries."

Following the sermon of Rev. Mr. Morrill was approached by several young men of his audience, who sought him to introduce them to the women they thought "worthy." Unhesitatingly their request was granted and they were told to go ahead.

School Notes.

Monday morning, Sept. 9 found us once more on our way to take up active work in the schoolroom in the Normal Department of the West Liberty High School. Of course that day was largely given up to speech making and general organizing, but before it was gone we had our three grades: sixth, seventh and eighth, which we will have till the Christmas holidays, all classified and work assigned for the next day. We found ourselves in charge of thirty-seven boys and girls that seem anxious to do that which will make them somebody in the world. We are always anxious to offer inspiration to those whom it will help, and no place on earth is the field wider and more ripe unto the harvest for good than in the schoolroom where boys and girls are standing on the threshold of life looking which way to go. We realize the responsibility that our position places upon us, and with the aid of the patrons of the school we mean to do our duty as best as we can. We ask their support in the sending the children every day that is possible for them to come. We miss those that are out now on account of sickness, and hope to have them again real soon. A vacant place in schoolroom is like a vacant place in the home; it causes us to wish that the missing one was in its accustomed place that all might be harmony and pleasant for all the room.

We hope to make this column in our county paper interesting and hereafter we will have a short story written by our composition class showing what is possible to do with children. Of course these little stories will not be classic literature, and we ask our friends who may be anxious to hear from our work each week not to expect too much from the little folk, but to appreciate the effort they make in the start of the great race for life.

Watch this column for news from the little folk whom God has given us a chance to help.

NOAH CISCO,
Teacher,

Game Commissioner Returns.

J. Quince Ward, Fish and Game Commissioner has returned from Denver, Colorado, where he attended the National Association of Game Commissioners and the convention of American Fishery Societies. Mr. Ward said he learned that in every State where the fish and game laws were similar to those in the State that conditions have been greatly improved and that it was the general opinion that with the enforcement of the Kentucky laws great quantities of fish and game could be produced in this State.

During the next year a great deal of work is going to be done along educational lines by the various States. Clubs for the protection of fish and game will be organized in every county in the State and through these organizations educational work will be carried on.

Up to date 5,277 hunter's license have been issued.—Lexington Herald.

In Defence Of Man.

By W. S. Potts.

There's a society in our town
Of which you've heard about.
It gives the woman all the praise,
And puts the men to rout.

They have something every week
To some one's home they go,
To discuss different methods
Of how to get the dough.

They say they're raising money
For the church upon the square,
But that's not all they're doing
While they're in session there.

Before they close they serve a lunch
But to keep there tongues in line,
They talk about their neighbors
And have a gay old time.

They take their magazines along
And catalogues of fashion,
They never miss a nifty style,
But take them in rotation.

They call the men old tight wads
And every thing that's bad;
When probably, dads last nickel
Paid for the lunch they had.

The young men with their best girl
Will not play short you know,
And that's the way they figure
On getting most their dough.

They have an ice cream supper
Next a one horse show,
Tack bills on every corner,
Teg every one to go.

Of course there's wife and kids to go
And that takes money too;
Poor old dad's pocket book
Must pass the whole bunch through.

For this woman takes the praise
'Twas the Ladies Aid that done it.
Our town could not prosper (nit)
Without the bunch to run it.

But they shall have all credit,
Not because they've won it;
But because they have the nerve to say
'Twas the Ladies Aid that done it.

The battle cry will work on earth
But beware, when death comes to you.
For you may hear St. Peter say
Depart I never knew you.

Now Ladies Aid, please let us rest
We know you're still in town.
And when you need some ready cash
Don't drop your head and frown.

Just have an ice cream supper
Or else another show,
And dad and steady will take the lunch
And that all helps you know.

Some day you'll face the judgement
And think of other ways.
(Of how the men have built the church,
But still you'll want the praise.

BIRTHS

THOMAS R. MARSHALL.
FOR CONGRESS
W. J. FIELDS.
FOR APPELLATE JUDGE
C. C. TURNER.

A honest heart will be reflected even in a homely face.

Self approbation is better far than the plaudits of the rabble.

Its not what you seem to be but what you really are that counts in the end.

Parcels post advantages to the householder are another result of democratic efforts in Congress.

Binks: Why do fools rush on where angels fear to tread?
Jinks: Because they are fools.

Don't take time to think twice before you speak once if your first thought is a good one—let 'er come.

Many a man (and woman) to loses the substance by making a futile effort to grasp the delusive shadow.

Fate cannot do much harm to a country that offsets a billion dollar congress with a three billion corn crop.

Try to read between the lines of your own manuscript and see if you can not detect something foolish therein.

Miss Kahilaonapaopilliana, of Hawaii, is to be married. No one can blame the girl with a name like that to change it.

Enough is now known to prove that the great Roosevelt campaign of 1904 was a scandal of corruption and a disgrace.

Doctors say that eating corn bread is good for the teeth. It might be added that it is also good for the entire system.

Mr. Taft says that the job of President "must have been a perfect hell," in Lincoln's time, and yet Old Abe made something of a success of it.

"Strong talk is what is needed," declares the man at Armageddon. If that were true, there would be really no doubt about whom to elect President. But it is not.

Count the day lost whose low descending sun,
Views from his lofty height no despicable action done.
This is intended for Col. Grouch and Esq. Meddler.

Why not everybody in the county talk "fair"? Are you who are financially able to put the enterprise through and who ought to be most interested, afraid that somebody else will make a dollar? A fair in Morgan county would indirectly benefit every body. The energetic and the resourceful would be greatly benefitted. One mile east of town is an ideal location for a fair ground and the owner is a public spirited citizen. The one thing needful is somebody to take the lead. Don't all speak at once?

OUR ATTITUDE.

Now that the school at West Liberty has opened there has been some little speculation among the people as to the attitude the COURIER would occupy toward it, generally. Some things for which it has always contended have been done, others have not. There have been some good changes made; there could have been others. And because the COURIER didn't carry its every point it has been said by some that the editor would let his animus run away with him, go gunning for the entire management and take a shot at all creation. That shows how little some people know and how narrow and intolerant they would be were they placed in our position. Our attitude will be, in a nutshell: "To speak the truth and nothing more." When it becomes necessary to speak or write the facts as they are will be told if it takes the hide. Conditions, as they exist, will be discussed without concealment or color. If commendation is merited we will not hesitate to commend. If condemnation is deserved we will not be slow to condemn. We pay our good coin to help maintain the school and get, directly, not a cent in return. But we are interested in the education of every child in Morgan county and therefore strenuously opposed to seeing conditions prevail in this or any other school that would rebound to their disadvantage. Every teacher who accepts a position in a public school should give value received for every cent of their salary. If this is not done the people's money is being worse than wasted. So it will be the province to the COURIER, during the present term of school to "render into Caesar that which is Caesar's." It will not be actuated nor influenced either by subservience to man, fear of God or dread of the Devil when it becomes incumbent upon it to open its columns for praise or criticism as the facts may justify. There will be no hiding behind the bush. Everything will be said and done in the open. It is more pleasant to commend than it is to cuss, but when to do the former would be to act the hypocrite and to do the latter would be to tell the truth—"eussing," as some people are pleased to call an exposition of wrong conditions, is sure to come. But on the other hand, if the school is conducted as it should be and the work is satisfactory, and the word satisfactory is used advisedly—no set of teachers can please everybody—then the COURIER will be the first to herald the tidings and it will speak to more people than can be reached through any other channel.

THE DIFFERENCE.

On last Friday night a play was given at the Christian Church under the auspices of the "Ladies Aid Society" of that church. My attitude toward the churches in West Liberty, superinduced, as the doctors would say, by their attitude toward me, is too well known to need further comment. But what I started out to say is this: Never since this fight began four years ago—a fight between right and personal privilege on one side and prejudice, intolerance and bigotry on the other side—never until the 13 day of September, A. D. 1912, did anyone approach me with a proposition which smacked, in the least, of justice or reason. I have had many conversations with members of both churches who decried the action of their respective church organizations when talking to me privately, but who it seemed, were wanting in moral courage when it came to a public showdown. The stamina to dare and to do what they believe to be right was lacking. Heretofore the tone and tenor of those who have condescended to talk to me on the subject, as a rule, has been that notwithstanding the fact that I might be in the right, yet, in this benighted age, when religion is subservient to policy, I ought to surrender my personal ideas of right and wrong, justice and injustice and bow at the shrine of public opinion on matters orthodox, as promulgated from the pulpit and accepted blindly by the laity. But this theme is prolific and I degress. To return to the subject. One of the leading men in the play, East Lynne, Mr. W. H. Gevedon, approached me just as though I were a human, with human impulses and attributes, and asked me, that if under any circumstances of conditions I could attend the performance to be given at the church that evening. This was so unexpected and out of the ordinary that, for the moment, I was struck dumb. When I had recovered sufficient equanimity to speak I told him, in the most courteous language at my command, that there was only one condition and that the borderline between that and the realms of impossibility were so indefinite that it were folly to dream that the church people, from whom the advances would have to come, would be able to locate them. Whoever heard of a church, as a body, frankly acknowledging that it had made a mistake or that any of its corporate actions were wrong? The Nix! Humility, as taught by the Son of God, has been stricken from the church category and domination in affairs both spiritual and temporal, has been substituted.

But the manner in which Mr. Gevedon approached me and his deference to my opinions, were in such striking contrast to what I have been accustomed to receive that, for the moment, it seemed that somewhere beneath the overwhelming mass of orthodoxy and dogmatism the spark of true religion still burned.

TREMENDOUS REPUBLICAN SPLIT.

This election shows that Roosevelt and Taft will split the Republican vote in two in every state in the union, and that the Democratic party is united. It is not only possible, but very probable that Woodrow Wilson will carry about 40 states out of the total 48 in the Union.

However the Democrats must keep up their campaigning and not let the battle lag through over confidence. Standpatism is sinking Taft like a millstone and Teddy is soaked in Standard Oil to the neck.

The State election in Vermont, which was held last week, has greatly increased the very high hopes of the Democrats for victory this fall. It has demonstrated one point in particular, which is of vital consequence to the democracy, and that is, the source from which Roosevelt draws his support; and this election has demonstrated that every Democrat in the State of Vermont voted the Democratic ticket and the Roosevelt people a little over one-third of the Republican vote. The normal Democratic vote in Vermont is about 16,000 and the normal Republican vote is about 40,000, and Roosevelt polled 15,000, the regular Republican 26,000, and the Democratic candidate for governor, 20,550. This shows that not only did every Democrat stand true to his party but that many republican first voters have evidently left the Republican party, in disgust and have now allied themselves with the Democrats.

The principle difference between "gall" and "gri" is that the former belongs almost exclusively to the chosen of the Lord (?), of the Hatcher ilk, while the latter is an adjunct to the common plodder, who, with labor stained hand and nerve unshaken, continues, despite undeserved odium and unwarranted attack, to pursue the even tenor of his way, earn his bread by the sweat of his brow, fight to the death when the pillager invades his domain, accords to all men the privilege of thinking and acting as they choose, so long as they delegate unto him the right to do the same, and who would rather die for principle than to live for compensation. This is the difference between "gri" and "gall."

Don't fail to read our great combination offer, the COURIER and the COMMONER, in this issue. The greatest opportunity ever offered to keep abreast of the times politically.

GUMPTION
Which is Common Sense without Educational Furbelows.
By L. T. HOVERMALIE.
The Common People.

Whether we accept the fact or not, most of us are of the "great common people." That as such we have the power to collectively direct our economic destinies is a theory agreed upon by all political economists. That we don't do this is a fact, that while not admitted, is nevertheless abundantly proven. The common people have very little to do with their political affairs. They go out and "whoop 'er up" for their candidate, go to the polls and vote, go back to their work and leave their destinies in the hands of the politicians.

In business affairs they have little or nothing to say, and the wage earner has absolutely no control of the wages he receives nor the prices he pays for the necessities of life. The stock gambler fixes the price of the necessities and the trusts fix the amount of his wages. Notwithstanding that on "Change last week wheat was lower than it has been for years the price of flour kept its upward move. In a spirit of the desire to learn I asked a merchant if he had heard of the slump in the price of wheat and he curtly answered: "Nope." It has always been a puzzle to me why a decline in the price of an article was so long in reaching the merchants and the news of an advance comes in double the speed of a wireless message.

Sometimes I think that the "great common people" get all that is coming to them. They prate of their "rights" and their sovereignty as American citizens, tread the other man's earth as if it belonged to them, and enter no protest against the system that makes slaves of them. It may be that in the eternal fitness of things they get all that they deserve. Those who are willing slaves can scarcely be expected to throw off the yoke, and it is questionable if they would appreciate industrial freedom.

Appropos of this doubt it will be interesting to watch the result of Ohio's plan to go to a basis of self government. If they will stand for their rights and enforce them and show to the other states that the application of the principle of the Initiative and Referendum means the absolute rule of the people it will not be many decades until all of the states will have adopted it, and the rational government as well. If it can remove from the throat of labor the remorseless hand of capital in that state it will have served its purpose and have made an example that will be the pillar of fire that will be followed by the other states, leading to the Canaan of industrial freedom.

The greatest danger to this movement lies in the people themselves. If they don't let political parties make an asset of this law, if they prove to be voters having the courage to vote on measures regardless of what the ranges of politicians in convention assembled resolute, all will be well. It is up to the people of Ohio to disprove (or confirm) the contention of the Plutocrats that the people are not capable of self-government. We shall see what we shall see.

XXVII.—Harnish is a man of great power and influence in the Klondike. He is a gambler, a politician, and a man of many names. He is the father of the Klondike, and the father of the Klondike's future.

Harnish arrived in the middle of the Klondike. He was a man of great power and influence. He was a gambler, a politician, and a man of many names. He was the father of the Klondike, and the father of the Klondike's future.

Leon Guggenhammer was a man of great power and influence in the Klondike. He was a gambler, a politician, and a man of many names. He was the father of the Klondike, and the father of the Klondike's future.

They filled his eyes with the practical vision of what he had in mind. He was a man of great power and influence in the Klondike. He was a gambler, a politician, and a man of many names. He was the father of the Klondike, and the father of the Klondike's future.

"They will never dream you are with us," Guggenhammer interjected. He was a man of great power and influence in the Klondike. He was a gambler, a politician, and a man of many names. He was the father of the Klondike, and the father of the Klondike's future.

Daylight nodded his head. He was a man of great power and influence in the Klondike. He was a gambler, a politician, and a man of many names. He was the father of the Klondike, and the father of the Klondike's future.

"And you also understand," Letton went on. He was a man of great power and influence in the Klondike. He was a gambler, a politician, and a man of many names. He was the father of the Klondike, and the father of the Klondike's future.

Daylight nodded his head. He was a man of great power and influence in the Klondike. He was a gambler, a politician, and a man of many names. He was the father of the Klondike, and the father of the Klondike's future.

"Yes, that's the very thing," Dowsett said. He was a man of great power and influence in the Klondike. He was a gambler, a politician, and a man of many names. He was the father of the Klondike, and the father of the Klondike's future.

"The commercial need for copper is continually increasing," Ward Valley Copper, and all that it stands for—practically one-quarter of the world's supply, as I have shown you—is a big thing, how big, even we can scarcely estimate. Our arrangements are made. We have plenty of capital ourselves, and yet we want more. Also, there is too much Ward Valley to suit our present plans. Thus we kill both birds with one stone.

Not only will you buy Ward Valley, but you will at the same time gather up the evening papers and glancing at the headlines, BURNING DAYLIGHT CLEARED OUT, he read: DAYLIGHT GETS HIS; ANOTHER WESTERNER FIGHTS TO FIND EASY MONEY.

He passed up to his room, ordered a Martini cocktail, took off his shoes, and sat down to think. After half an hour he roused himself to take the train. He felt the liquor passing warmly through his body. His eyes relaxed into a slow, deliberate, yet genuine grin. He was laughing at himself.

"Bumped, by gosh!" he muttered. Then the grin died away, and his face grew bleak and serious. Leaving out his interests in the several Western reclamation projects (which were still assessing heavily), he was a ruined man. But harder hit than this was his pride. He had been so easy. They had gold-bribe him, and he had nothing to show for it. The simple farmer would have done plenty, while he had nothing but a gentleman's agreement, and a verbal one at that. Gentleman's agreement! He snorted over it. John Dowsett's voice, just as he had heard it in the telephone receiver, sounded in his ears the words, "On my honor as a gentleman."

They were sneaking thieves and swindlers, that was what they were, and they had given him the double-cross. The newspapers were right. He had come to New York to be trimmed, and Messrs. Dowsett, Letton and Guggenhammer had done it. He was a little fish, and they had played with him ten days—ample time in which to swallow him, along with his eleven millions. Of course, they had been unloading on him all the time, and now they were buying Ward Valley back for a song ere the market righted itself.

And Daylight sat and consumed cocktails and saw back in his life to Alaska, and lived over the grim years in which he had battled for his eleven millions. For awhile murder ate at his heart, and wild ideas and sketches of killing his betrayers flashed through his mind. Daylight unlocked his grip and took out his automatic pistol—a big Colt's .44. He released the safety catch with his thumb, and, operating the sliding outer barrel, ran the contents of the clip through the magazine. The eight cartridges slid out in a stream. He refilled the clip, threw a cartridge into the chamber, and with the trigger at full cock, thrust up the safety catch. He shoved the weapon into the side pocket of his coat, ordered another Martini, and resumed his seat.

At ten o'clock he arose and pored over the city directory. Then he put on his shoes, took a cab, and departed into the night. Twice he changed cabs, and finally fetched up at the night office of a detective agency. He superintended the thing himself, laid down money in advance in profuse quantities, selected the six men he needed, and gave them their instructions.

Never, for so simple a task, had they been so well paid; for to each in addition to office charges, he gave a five hundred-dollar bill, with the promise of another if he succeeded. Some time next day, he was convinced, if not sooner, his three silent partners would come together. To each one of his detectives were to be attached. Time and place was to be ascertained. "Stop at nothing, boys," were his final instructions. "I must have this information. Whatever you do, whatever happens, I'll see you through."

Returning to his hotel, he changed cabs as before, went up to his room, and with one more cocktail for a nightcap, went to bed and to sleep. In the morning he dressed and shaved, ordered breakfast and the newspapers sent up, and waited. But he did not drink. By nine o'clock his telephone began to ring and the reports to come in. Nathaniel Letton was taking the train at Tarrytown. John Dowsett was coming down by the subway. Leon Guggenhammer had not stirred yet, though he was assuredly within. And in this fashion, with a map of the city spread out before him, Daylight followed the movements of his three men as they drew together. Nathaniel Letton was at his office in the Mutual-Solander Building. Next arrived Guggenhammer. Dowsett was still in his own office. But at eleven came the word that he also had arrived, and several minutes later Daylight was in a hired motor-car and speeding for the Mutual-Solander Building.

Mother of Clubs. The first woman's club in America was organized in New Harmony by the late Mrs. Constance Runcie on September 20, 1855. This was nine years before the organization of the Boreas Club of New York.

In 1867 Mrs. Runcie formed the Boreas club, and later became the head of an organization which has since that time borne her name and of which she was elected president for life.

At the biennial convention of the Federation of Women's Clubs held in St. Paul five years ago the title of "Mother of Clubs" was conferred upon her, and two years later, at a similar gathering in Boston, she was received with signal honors as the pioneer in the club movement.—The Outlook.

Impressions of Mr. Newrich. When Mr. Newrich was asked, on his return to Tacoma, what he thought of Italy, he hesitated for several seconds. "I want to speak fairly about every country I've been to in my travels," he said, slowly. "And there are points about some parts of that Italian country that I'd like to see copied in Tacoma. I am referring," said Mr. Newrich, letting his slow and heavy gaze rest on one member of his audience after another, "to the natural beauties of the country, you understand. When you come to buildings, the whole of Italy, particularly Rome, has seen her best days, in my opinion, and seen 'em a good while ago, what's more."

NOTICE. Obituaries, Resolutions of Respect, and matters not of a purely news nature are charged for at 5 cents a line, six words per line, the money to accompany the article. Send us the news of your neighborhood, concisely written, but articles for which we have a fixed charge must be accompanied by the cash.

BLAZE

Crops of all kinds in this section of the county are the finest in quality and most abundant in quantity we have had for many years.

John Milt Cassidy, of Yale, visited Sam Ellington and family, of this community, the first of the week.

Our schools are progressing with entire satisfaction to the pupils and patrons, under the efficient management of Prof. Tony Carter, at Blaz, and Prof. William H. Lewis, at Dittoey.

Harlan Lewis has finished his three-year log job on Devil Fork, and has moved back to his home at Blaz.

Died on the 7th Inst. the five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie K. Sargent. Scarlet fever was the fatal malady.

Austin Fields, the brother and private secretary of Congressman Fields, of this district visited friends in this community last Saturday and Sunday. Austin says that it is very generally conceded in Washington that Governor Wilson will carry thirty-eight of the forty-eight states in the Union, and that Wilson's election is a foregone conclusion.

This is the first Presidential campaign year within the memory of your correspondent that the Republicans have failed to pick up the dust for their nominee in this Republican stronghold. We never hear one of them mention the coming election. If there is one of the old guard for Taft, we have not heard of it. At present the indications are that there will be a great deal of corn husked in this section on election day. The death of the beautiful old Jumbo is as apparent here as it is in great political centers. However, we Democrats should not rely too much on the certainty of our candidate's election. To be sure, nothing can now prevent the election of Wilson; but we should all go to the polls and make the majority so large that the Elephant and the Bull Moose will hide out in tall timber for all time to come.

EITOFIAN.

Go to Keeton's for Horsh's Candy. Chocolate Almonds, Milk Chocolate and Chocolate Kisses.

GRASSY CREEK

The Amys Brothers are making considerable improvements on the roads running up Grassy. Willie Byrd is having a commodious mansion erected near his old residence. James H. Castle, who was seriously hurt last week, is better. Our stock men have been making themselves busy for the last few days collecting cattle, and as a result, quite a number of droves have passed through enroute to the Mt. Sterling market. A considerable number of the citizens of Morgan county anticipate going to Lexington on the 18 inst., to hear the champions of Democracy speak. Asa M. Lykins has taken charge of the school in sub district No. 4 Grassy Creek, and is progressing nicely. Mrs. Frances E. Kibbore, of Grassy Creek, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. McKinney, of Morehead.

Married.

Gains Whitt and Lydn Cottle were quietly married at the home of the bride's father, Rev. Harlan Cottle on Saturday, the 14th inst. The groom is the son of J. E. Whitt a former merchant and lumberman, and one of the members of the firm of Whitt & Sons, of Wells Station.

For the best fine shoes that a lady ever wore accept nothing but a "Selby" it is the standard for every work, found only at C. W. Womack's. 118-tf.

Annual Meeting.

The Annual Meeting of the Christian church was held here last Friday, Saturday and Sunday. On Saturday the meetings were held at Highland Park and there was a very large attendance. On account of the rain Sunday services were held at the Christian Church and at the High School Auditorium. Notwithstanding the rain there were in the neighborhood of a thousand people here Sunday.

"Gyp the Blood" and "Leftie Lanie" the missing slayers of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler in New York several weeks ago, were arrested in Brooklyn where they were living quietly in a flat with their wives.

Everybody goes to Keeton's for ice cream and soft drinks. Special attention is given to this line.

OPENED WEST POINT IN 1802

Great Training School Has Turned Out Some Efficient Officers for Uncle Sam.

The selection of West Point as the place for the national military academy was due, says Mrs. C. R. Miller in Leslie's Weekly, to its advantages from a military viewpoint, for its rugged beauty and its severe climate were calculated to be beneficial in the foundation of that sort of character so essential to a successful officer. The academy was formally opened July 4, 1802, with ten cadets and five officers as instructors. Its success is said to be due to the administrative ability of General Sylvanus Thayer, who became its superintendent in 1817 and served as such for 16 years. This officer is known as the Father of West Point. Since the opening of the academy, including the class of 1911, more than five thousand officers have been graduated.

A cadet's education costs the government about $3,500. All cadets are on the same footing. The pay of a cadet is $600 a year and one ration per day, or commutation thereof at 30 cents a day. The total is about $709.50, to commence with his admission to the academy. Immediately after his admission the young man must spend about $160 for uniforms.

After graduation the cadet is eligible to the rank of second lieutenant and is appointed to whatever branch of the service his record entitles him. Those who are highest in class honors are generally appointed to the engineering corps.

An act of congress authorizing the expenditure of $5,800,000 for the reconstruction of the United States Military Academy was passed in June, 1902, and at a later session of congress $1,700,000 additional was allowed.

WILL STICK TO WATER WAGON

No More Convivial Times for Boston Man, After an Experience in Rhode Island.

The confidential clerk of a Boston financial establishment, who is noted for his scrupulousness, explained thus to a party of friends the other evening why for two months he has confined his convivial exercises to the consumption of buttermilk, apollinaris and other innocuous beverages:

"I hit it up pretty strong one week in March," he said, "and when I came to Providence, broke. I hadn't the heart to walk the forty-four miles between me and Boston. I got lifts from farmers and slept in a barn one night, and the next day got along as far as Stoughton. I was passing a humble home in the woods when I smelled corned beef and cabbage cooking. I simply couldn't pass that house without eating."

"Resolved to send the housewife a dollar if she fed me, I made known my almost agonizing hunger. She promptly set me down to the best tasting meal I had ever known and I was working at it man fashion when the young hopeful of the house, about 4 years old, began a dismal wailing. 'Keep still, Mikey,' said the mother, 'or I'll have the hum ate you.' I felt a lump in my throat that stopped the passage of food for more than a minute. I then realized as I hadn't before just what my spree had done to my appearance."

"Mikey immediately checked his grief, and was maintaining perfect silence when his mother addressed me, saying, 'If Mikey cries again you'll ate him, won't you, Mr. Tramp?' 'I would if you'd wash him,' I answered. 'I've been on the wagon since.'"

Park Seats to Make Money.

San Jose, Cal., is trying in its park a bench devised by E. W. Allen for use in connection with the free seats. It is a swinging seat so arranged that until a nickel is deposited in a slot, the back is tilted forward and the seat downward, so that it can not be used. A coin releases it, however, and provides a rocking seat for two persons. As soon as they leave the seat swings back to its former position, and requires another nickel to unlock it. In sunny places the bench is placed under a canopy. The inventor believes that on Sundays and other times, when there are unusual crowds in the park, many people will be willing to spend a nickel for a comfortable seat for their exclusive use.—The Survey.

The Tins of Her Life.

The new colored domestic, fresh from Kentucky, took her first "Thursday afternoon off" and failed to return to prepare the seven o'clock dinner for the family. Next morning she reappeared rather "donsle." "Why, Bibbie," said the lady of the house, "you look sick. What is the matter?" "Yes'm, I done been sick, awful sick, but it was wuth it. Dat dollah you given me, I spent every cent of it an' I done had de time of my life. What I done with it? Well, missus, I tell de truf an' no more'n de truf. I bought ten glasses of soda and went to ten of dose movable picnic shows. My, my, one can't have no such time in Kalntucky."—Indianapolis News.

Will "Nest" Life Boats.

One of the great trans-Atlantic steamship companies has determined to make use of the system of carrying boats on deck known as "nesting." Nesting requires a host of special construction, for the standard lifeboat could not be nested above two, or at the outside three, deep.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing the work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.
